

Universal Love

These two things—let it be known:

- Love asks nothing and receives everything.
- Pain and suffering are the result of misguided intentions that block love.

Universal love is the source of everything. Universal love is the power that sustains all life. Ego strategies and neediness block the very love you so desire.

Love, in its purest form, shines away all doubt. It strengthens your resolve and it confirms your intentions. It limits nothing and controls no one.

Love builds hope and faith. It fortifies your strength and increases your intensity. It moves mountains.

In its purest form, love flourishes in spite of uncertainty. It provides comfort and dissolves all fear. Love is the very reason you exist.

Love eliminates no one and shines on everyone. Love spreads far and wide. It abandons no one.

Love paves the way for a smooth journey. It creates opportunities that lead to fruition. It is both practical and masterful.

Love cuts through the clouds of confusion and clears all interference. It does not shrink or cower in the face of obstacles. Love is patient and enduring.

Love radiates peace and joy. It multiplies and amplifies all your efforts. Let us envelope the world in love.

It is time to give up your worries and concerns. They limit your power and energy. Be joyful and what you need will follow; not the other way around. The world believes you will be happy when you get what you need, but this is not true.

Your needs and desires will be met. Trust in that.

© Copyright by Danna Beal, 2001

